

AN ENGINEER'S TERRIBLE TRIAL.

Engine Refused to Work and Train Was Stalled in the Park Avenue Tunnel.

HE OPENED THE THROTTLE.

Then Fell Unconscious to Floor of Cab
—Push Engine Started Train and it Went Flying, Without Control.

New York, Dec. 23.—With the throttle wide open and the engineer unconscious on the floor of the cab, a 5-year-old New York Central locomotive drawing six cars laden with stone, ran wild through Harlem early on Thursday morning and finally came to a standstill, wrecked, when it crashed into a locomotive of the Harlem division in the Mott Haven yards.

Details of the accident became generally known for the first time last night through friends of the engineer, Elvy Deyo, of Poughkeepsie, who is now in Lebanon hospital, dying from burns and scalds. Three men who jumped from the train in the tunnel were lying unconscious at the track side when Deyo last saw them. What happened to them is a matter of conjecture. The accident is said to have been due to a lack of ventilation in the tunnel.

A work train of 16 cars left the New York Central station about 6:30 a. m. It was drawn by a gigantic "Pony" engine. The top of its short smokestack clears the roof of the Park Avenue tunnel by only a few inches.

At Fifteenth street, the big engine became stalled on a "dead center." Engineer Deyo tried to get the piston moving by starting the exhaust but in spite of his efforts he could not get the big machine to turn a wheel.

The fireman and two brakemen in the cab with Deyo began to cough as the hard coal gas from the locomotive back box came pouring down upon them, deflected by the roof and walls of the tunnel.

As the engineer, still working with might and main at the throttle lever to get his engine moving looked at his three companions he saw them slowly and painfully crawl down off the locomotive cab into the tunnel.

They tried to run back out of reach of the deadly coal gas, but before they had gone a dozen steps fell unconscious. Deyo's train was stalled on the main track, a peril to traffic, and he dared not to leave the cab for a moment.

Conscious of the danger too that he might succumb to the fumes of the coal gas, he wet a big bunch of cotton waste at the tank and plastered it over his mouth and nose. But the waste was little protection. Deyo was still trying to get the engine off the "dead center" when his head began to whirl. With a last effort of consciousness he pulled back the throttle lever. Just then a pushing engine came up behind and struck the long train and the impact started the locomotive. The shock knocked Deyo, weak and dizzy, off his balance, and he fell to the floor of the cab unconscious. With the throttle wide open, the locomotive gathered speed. Deyo's body rested close to the open door of the fire box and the flames began to scorch him as they leaped out of the furnace. All the way through the long Park Avenue tunnel the train flew. The switches were right and the draw bridge over the Harlem river was, fortunately, closed.

The train dashed into the Mott Haven yard of the New Haven road and ran into a light engine on the main track. Both locomotives were wrecked, and Deyo was removed unconscious from the debris.

PRONUNCIAMENTO AGAINST THE CZAR.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 23.—The boldness of all the bold pronouncements of the revolutionaries is a mysterious handball with which Tsarok-Selo was flooded today. Professing to allude to a terrorist plot against the emperor, the handball says:

"There will be a little puff of smoke. Pay no heed to it, as the result will be the best thing possible for everybody." The police have been baffled in their efforts to find the printers and disseminators of these bills.

Health and Beauty

Beauty is the external proof of health; with failing health comes failing beauty. Woman's delicate organism is frequently over-taxed by arduous household duties, and the demands of society. The constant drain upon her vitality weakens her nervous system. The penalty is a tired, worn-out, exhausted condition which destroys her appetite, robs her of rest, and at intervals causes much suffering and distress. When these conditions exist, the weakened nerves must be strengthened. Dr. Miles' Nervine will do this. It stimulates the action of all the organs, brings refreshing sleep, and drives away that look of care.

"I have taken Dr. Miles' Nervine for years, and did my mother before me. Whenever I feel tired, worn-out, or have headache, I always take the Nervine and it strengthens me. I consider it a great remedy for nervousness or debility."

"77" Dr. Humphreys' Seventy-Seven breaks up Colds and

GRIP

"An epidemic of a peculiar form of Grip, which effects the tonsils and has a slight resemblance to diphtheria, is causing considerable alarm."

Although the malady is not dangerous in its consequences, it is described by physicians as being exceedingly painful and lasts for about one week. It is contagious, and children are especially susceptible to the disease.

If it is Grip or only a Cold "77" will break it up.

TRUE CONDITION OF AFFAIRS IN COLOMBIA.

New York, Dec. 23.—Luis E. Bonilla, consul general in Colombia, yesterday addressed the press as follows:

"Sir—Kindly give publicity to the following important telegram from the excellency, Gen. Rafael Reyes, president of Colombia, in order that the true condition of the country may be known and confidence in the peace of Colombia assured. President Reyes is well capable of maintaining order throughout the country, being a man of indefatigable will and possessing wonderful activity. Moreover, the large majority of the people in Colombia desire peace at any cost. The telegram reads as follows:

"Bogota, Dec. 21, 1905.—Colombian Consul, New York. Absurd conspiracy discovered. Those responsible for it in prison. Will be judged by court-martial. Country quiet. Peace secure. Exchange lowering from five to three. (Signed.) 'REYES.'"

Enrique Perez, editor of the Pan American Review, also made public a communication, in which after referring to the report that an attempt had been made at Bogota, to dispose of President Reyes, he says:

"I am in a position to affirm that what took place in the city of Bogota on the 20th inst. was simply a ridiculous conspiracy, discovered in time and without any serious consequences. The conspiracy did not have the importance given to it by the correspondent of the state department. There is not the slightest probability of a revolution in Colombia, and dispatches received from Bogota explain the occurrence as of no consequence whatever."

"While there may have been some local political excitement, due to the lack of patriotism of a handful of political discontents belonging to the party or the family of the defeated candidate in the last presidential election, there is no foundation for the report as it has appeared."

CZAR IS GETTING PROVOKED WITH HIS MINISTERS.

New York, Dec. 23.—A cable dispatch to the Herald from St. Petersburg dated Dec. 22 says:

At a meeting at Tsarok-Selo the monarch expressed himself in very heated terms with reference to the inability of the ministers to meet the situation, and gave them three hours to come to some decision.

Failing this, the emperor said if they had so lost their heads he would take the reins into his own hands immediately, and would call a meeting of his military council to consider the advisability of declaring that the whole of Russia is in a state of siege. The ministers left in a very crestfallen state of mind.

POLE FOR WIRELESS MESSAGES.

Vallejo, Cal., Dec. 23.—A pole reaching to the height of 250 feet and fitted with aerial apparatus for the Mare Island wireless has just been erected on the island. This great height will offset inconveniences which have interfered with the transmission of messages heretofore. The stations at the Farrallones, Tammalpas and Goat Island can now be in touch with the yard and it is hoped also that ships at sea, can be communicated with. This pole is in three sections and is said to be one of the biggest in the history of aerial transmission.

STAMPING OUT TUBERCULOSIS.

Chicago, Dec. 23.—The school management committee of the board of education yesterday took a hand in the fight to stamp out tuberculosis in Chicago and to prevent its spread in the public school rooms by adopting, without a dissenting vote, a resolution calling for the appointment of a committee to draft a rule providing, exclusion from the public schools of all victims of the disease.

The committee was also empowered to prepare a plan for the medical examination of all "suspect" pupils, with a view to determining whether or not they should be denied admission to the school room. Tuberculosis was held to be as infectious as smallpox, scarlet fever or diphtheria.

SHOULD BE POPULAR.

This is What is Required of Colonels Nowadays.

In talking about national guard colonels today, an officer of the guard said: "It doesn't make a particle of difference nowadays whether the colonel of a regiment knows anything about military affairs or not. The duties of actual commanding devolve upon subordinate officers, and a Fort Laramie officer told me the other day that he had not seen a colonel commanding his regiment in the field for 20 years. What is wanted of a colonel now is to be a popular man whose name will attract attention and regard; if he has money and is willing to spend it on the regiment, so much the better. Drilling now is by battalion and by company, not by regiment, and with this the colonel has really nothing to do. A man who can cut a fine figure at the head of his command on parade, and bring the regiment into favor and respect with the people at large, and to whom the members of the regiment can point with pride and say: 'That man is our colonel,' that is the kind of a man wanted. What did you hear of a colonel who was a regular army officer, who knew how to command from A to Z, and who he who did the actual commanding."

PEACE REIGNS AT UNIVERSITY.

Curtain Goes Down on the Last
Act of the Roaring Farce,
"The Amateur Holdup."

SOPHOMORES REPRIMANDED.

Engineers Play a Smart Trick on Their Teacher, But Are Also Forgiven.

The curtain went down last night on the final act of the roaring farce "The Amateur Holdup" at the University of Utah, with the community once more at peace, the holdups contrite, the discipline committee victorious, and the final, a fatherly lecture to the "bold, bad sophomores" not to do it again.

Following the threat of the faculty to expel the one who was discovered, and the counter threat of the two classes involved, to bolt in a body, Chairman W. C. Ebaugh of the discipline committee brought the warring factions together, and produced peace. He attended the student body meeting called by President Harold M. Stephens, and in a conciliatory speech, pointed out that it was for the best interests of the school for the students not to become defiant, and for them to pass resolutions condemning the pranks of the sophomores, and all similar outbreaks of juvenile spirit. He also advised that the sophomores engaged in the holdup appear before the faculty with their companion, and thus make his position less conspicuous.

CLASS SHOULDERS BLAME.

The two men then made themselves known, but their classmates refused to allow them to go in alone before the committee, so they decided to take the blame on the entire sophomore class. Part of the class, however, had been ignorant of the intended holdup, and finally the seven men who planned the deed, and knew of its carrying out, marched into the faculty meeting. With them came a messenger bearing a resolution from the assembled students, expressing their condemnation of the acts of the sophomores, and all such actions. The faculty heard the resolution, asked the sophomores if they agreed to it, and then dropped the entire matter with a lecture to the young men. The side of their escapade was one that had not till then presented itself to them.

DON'T KNOW A THING.

An incident which came to light yesterday was an act of the juniors taken while the friction between students and faculty was at its height. An engineering class of 20 men was given an examination in bridge construction and hydraulic pumps under Prof. C. A. Overstrom.

Instead of answering the questions, some of them wrote on their papers, "don't know a thing about it. Wish you a merry Christmas and happy New Year," while others put down a legend to the effect that the bridges were snowed in, and the pumps frozen up, with no chance for a thaw until after Christmas. Prof. Overstrom took it seriously at first, but finally decided to let it pass as a "Christmas joke." His examination after the holidays, however, may be stiffened up for the benefit of the students.

OPINION OF STUDENTS.

Comment today on the case is varied, among many students especially in the lower classes, the sentiment is that the case belonged to them alone, and since university work or class room exercises were not interfered with, it was not a case calling for faculty action. Antagonism to the discipline committee is apparent in some of the remarks, one by a freshman being to the effect that "the school is growing so fast the faculty can't keep up." It is not likely that further developments will occur.

PICKPOCKETS AT WORK.

Managers of Department Stores Make Complaints to the Police.

Managers of department stores are complaining of shoplifters and pickpockets who, it is claimed, have been doing a land office business during the Christmas rush.

Pocketbooks and parcels in great numbers have been stolen by shoplifters, and it is reported that extra clerks in several of the large stores have been caught stealing from their employers. The pickpockets of these stores have not prosecuted any of the thieving clerks, but discharged them and placed their names on the blacklist.

At Walker's store yesterday afternoon, Mrs. J. M. Walker, 123 East South street, lost her pocketbook containing $5, which she had just got from the bank. She placed her purse and handkerchief in her jacket pocket, and when she went to pay for a purchase she found that the purse and handkerchief had been stolen.

TOLD FISH STORIES.

Salt Lickers Swap Yarns on Possibility of Utah Streams

W. W. Ritter and W. F. James were exchanging fish stories today at the Deseret Savings bank. Mr. James had a tale to unfold about a lot of eyeless eels he once saw swimming about in some Utah streams; but Mr. Ritter "called him" with a story from the effects of which Mr.

James is still endeavoring to recover. Mr. Ritter, who is sometimes referred to as the "Innisk" of Utah, said that out by the point of the mountain, near Black Rock, in the spring pounds, there is a chub brand of fish that is so tenacious of life that one may cut its head off, clean its innards out, and even go so far as to broil it on one side in the "spider" and even then the fish will squirm and try to get back into the water. However, when the other side has been broiled to a brown finish, the chub really becomes deceased. Mr. Ritter said he had once called the attention of Manager J. B. Charge of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road to this fact, and Mr. Charge was inclined to regard the matter as related to the extinguished gent mentioned in the fifth chapter of Acts. However, Mr. Ritter stuck to his story, and Mr. Charge was led to believe that Utah must truly be the fountain head of some other remarkable things besides religious and political controversies.

NOW JUNIOR MAJOR.

Robert L. Hirst Returns to Fort Douglas After Promotion.

Captain Robert L. Hirst, adjutant of the Twelfth U. S. infantry, and stationed in that capacity at Fort Douglas, with his regimental headquarters, returned to Fort Douglas today, from San Francisco as the junior major of the Twenty-ninth infantry, to which regiment he is taken by his promotion from a captaincy. Major Hirst graduated from the academy of 1886 and was assigned to the Eleventh infantry, he was promoted to be first lieutenant in 1890 and was made a captain in the Twelfth infantry in 1898. His arrival at the post makes two majors there, the other being Major Pendleton, who will be in command of the post shortly as Col. Lockwood has two months leave of absence and leaves for the east next week to put his son in school. Major Hirst fills the vacancy caused by the retirement of Major Thurston last July.

GAVE GIFTS TO THE POOR.

Sunday School Children Play Santa
Claus at Presbyterian Church.

The First Presbyterian church was crowded last evening, on the occasion of the Sunday school's Christmas festival. Hitherto it has been the custom for the presents to be given to members of the school, but this year the children of the school played Santa Claus themselves and the presents went to poor children. One class provided a tray full of pennies, and other articles of clothing, yet another provisions, and one class brought in a dinner for a large family. The distribution of gifts was followed by a program. The decorations were very pretty, an immense electric star being located in the middle of the platform. The primary department is holding a Christmas party this evening, when a lunch will be served to the children.
